

Abstract of the Disclosure

A mobile communications device is adapted to use 5 applications resident on a remote network server. The display of the mobile device is divided into static and dynamic display zones. Inquiries originating externally from the mobile device are identified and restrictively routed only to the dynamic display. Internally generated 10 inquiries trigger a indicator symbol within the static display. In this manner bogus requests for confidential identifiers may be avoided.

005120-3032500